INTELLIGENCE KNOWLEDGE CHECK

UNKNOWN

Unknown — suspicious pattern

Unknown domain

The domain super.com does not correspond to any major brand, public service, or well-known infrastructure based on training data. Its generic name and registration details do not indicate a trusted entity; it appears to be a standard, registered domain with no publicly known associations. Without additional context, it cannot be confidently classified as benign or malicious.

SCAN EVIDENCE VERDICT

25

/100

MEDIUM RISK

The domain super.com is unfamiliar and lacks any known association with trusted entities, aligning with prior intelligence indicating an unknown, suspicious pattern. Real-time scan evidence shows a valid SSL certificate, high-confidence use of Cloudflare, and no blacklist flags, which suggests benign intent. However, the domain's young age, missing security headers like CSP, and its status as an unknown entity introduce red flags that warrant caution. The redirect chain confirms the site ultimately resolves to itself, with no suspicious destinations detected.

1. Monitor the domain for any changes in SSL or security headers, especially CSP and Content Security policies.
2. Conduct further investigation into the domain's registration details and purpose before any user engagement.
3. Implement additional security controls if integrating this domain into critical systems, given its unknown reputation.
4. Keep an eye on threat intelligence feeds for any future blacklist or malicious activity reports related to super.com.
